BOISE NATIONAL FOREST

The Boise National Forest encompasses approximately 2.3 million acres across five ranger districts. Elevations vary greatly, from 2,800 feet in the North Fork Payette River Canyon to nearly 10,000 feet atop Steel Mountain. This wide range of elevations encompasses a great diversity of geologic features. Geologically the Forest is dominated by granitic rock, with inclusions of basalts to the west, and volcanic rock to the south. Major mountain ranges include the Boise, Salmon River and West Mountain ranges. The Forest has one of the largest timber and silviculture programs in Region 4. Approximately 76 percent of the Forest's lands are considered forested and about 23 percent are considered non-forested or dominated by grass, forb, shrub, or brush species.
